

Editing

Copywriters are often asked to edit existing copy content or documents. This occurs when in-house materials need updating. In these cases, the editing process is strictly functional, not creative. It includes proofreading and re-writing for clarity and accuracy. Editing existing copy content is crucial to ensuring that the language fits the audience and marketing objectives are best addressed.